A message from City Manager Marcella Marlowe, Ph.D.

City’s recreation revisioning underway

Happy August, San Marino! Our recreation revisioning is happily underway. As I write this in late June, we are planning to have some preliminary community engagement activities in mid-July, with more to come in early fall. After the preliminary feedback from the community in July, we will be conducting a statistically valid survey along with an open website link so that everyone may voice their thoughts about what kind of recreation programming the City should sponsor and what you think we should consider.

I’m happy to introduce our Interim Community Services Director, Mr. Cesar Monsalve, who will be spending a few months with us while we complete our rebranding and recruit for a new permanent director. Perhaps you’ve met him already! Mr. Monsalve is an outstanding recreation and facilities professional, having spent more than 30 years in the field. His impressive career culminated with long-term tenure at the City of Duarte, where he retired as the Parks and Recreation Director last December. He is well-respected by that City and his colleagues in the profession, and has a reputation for commitment, professionalism and integrity. It has been a pleasure to work with him since his arrival in mid-June and I believe you will enjoy your interactions with him as well.

In the meantime, please enjoy our programming and don’t hesitate to participate in all of our engagement opportunities as we reconsider what recreation means, and should mean, to our community.

Help protect City’s urban forest

Trees are a foundational layer of the beautiful San Marino community. The newly modified Tree Preservation Ordinance, which became effective on February 8, 2019, focuses on the protection and reforestation of the City to enhance this valuable community asset. To ensure that the City maintains this asset, the City would like to remind the community of the key components of the Tree Preservation requirements.

In the new Tree Preservation Ordinance, it is important to note the new definitions of established trees, the notification requirements, the requirements to obtain a permit, guidelines for obtaining a licensed tree trimmer and the penalties for violating the requirements.

For a copy of the complete ordinance, please visit the City of San Marino’s website at www.cityofsanmarino.org.

Visit the City’s website at www.cityofsanmarino.org for City news, information and resources.

A message from Fire Chief Mario Rueda

Know how to turn off utilities in the event of an emergency

With this past summer’s California ISO Flex Alerts across the State, now is a good time to revisit important information about your utilities. The California ISO manages the flow of electricity across the high-voltage, long-distance power lines that make up 80 percent of California’s and a small part of Nevada’s electrical grid. This nonprofit public benefit corporation also operates a competitive wholesale energy market and conducts transmission planning to identify grid expansion needs.

Let’s quickly review where water, gas and electricity valves and switches are located, as well as when, how and if you should turn them off.

Electricity

We often take electricity for granted. During the latest rainstorms that impacted our area, several trees that fell also brought down high voltage electrical wires. One thing we should never do is underestimate the potential for danger in certain situations. Electrocution and fire are very real hazards that can occur when electrical wires or outlets malfunction or when they are damaged or misused.

Shut off your electricity under the following circumstances:
• You smell burning insulation.
• There is a fire or major water leak.
• You suspect a gas leak.
• Arcing or burning occurs in electrical items.
• Switches or plugs become blackened or hot.
• Power loss, accompanied by a burning smell.

Electrical safety should be elementary to every homeowner. Even children should be made aware of the potential dangers, and adults should know where a home’s electrical panels are located. When you do suspect an electrical problem, here’s what to do to turn off the electricity:
• Locate the main electric box, normally in the garage or on the exterior of the home.
• If your home has circuit breakers, open the metal door of the breaker box and turn the electrical switch to “Off.”
• If your house has fuses, there should be a pullout fuse marked “Main.” Remove all the small fuses, and then remove the “Main” fuse.

Water

Water … we love to drink it, swim in it and refresh our lawns and clean our cars with it. But the minute it starts leaking, it’s an entirely different story. Water leaks can cause extensive property damage and create electrical hazards as well. When a major disaster strikes, leaks can turn into something much bigger and costlier. After events such as major earthquakes, it’s smart to temporarily shut off your water supply to protect it from contaminants and from bursting through cracked pipes. Whenever you have to turn off your water, follow these simple steps:
• Find your water shutoff valve, usually located in your garage or outside next to the side or rear of your house where the water line enters the home.
• The water shutoff is usually a wheel located on a riser pipe. Turn this wheel clockwise to shut it off.
• You can also turn off the water to specific appliances such as dishwashers, refrigerators and sink faucets. These are usually located on attached lines to the appliances and can be turned off with a clockwise twist of the valve or wheel.

Natural Gas

Natural gas leaks can occur even without the help of a natural or man-made disaster. When they occur inside a home or other building, they can cause deadly fires and explosions. If you suspect a gas leak, here’s what to do:
• If you smell or hear gas escaping, suspect a leak or discover a broken gas line, shut off the main valve and quickly open all doors and windows.
• The main shutoff valve is located on the gas line leading into your gas meter, normally located on the side yard or backyard of your home, or possibly in an outside closet. This value, about 6 to 8 inches above the ground, runs parallel with the meter pipe.
• With a sturdy wrench, give the valve a ¼ turn in either direction until the valve is crosswise to the pipe.
• Do not attempt to turn the gas back on. Instead, contact the Gas Company.
• Never use candles or matches if you suspect a leak, and do not turn on electrical switches or appliances as this can cause an explosion or fire.

As I often do, I was driving around the City looking at all the residences and some businesses. Not admiring the beauty and serenity, but being a cop who leads a department full of outstanding men and women sworn to keep the City safe. I look for secured garages and homes with cameras and alarms, along with the occasional sound of a barking dog coming from the rear yard of a home. I also hope to see motion sensor lights coming on at night, alarm company signs and neighbors talking to each other as they go about their daily routine. These are a few of the sights that I look for along with an occasional traffic violator or more serious offender.

Our efforts are manifold: we patrol, we hold Neighborhood Watch meetings, we solicit ideas and we catch the suspects who commit crimes in San Marino. Sometimes we are successful on our own and sometimes we need your help. Teamwork is what gets things done in business, sports and crime prevention. Your help is essential for the prevention and deterrence of crime. Here are a few reminders of simple steps that can be taken to be a part of the team.

• If you see something, say something. We have had numerous residents, who are out for a walk, call us about something suspicious, which has resulted in an arrest or prevented a crime.
• Get a monitored alarm system with cameras and use it.
• Lock your cars, hide your valuables and keep them from being stolen.
• Join your local Neighborhood Watch Program. Contact us at neighborhoodwatch@smpd.us.
• Close your garage door.
• Consider the purchase of a doorbell camera system.
• Use motion sensor outdoor lighting.
• If you are going to be away, contact us for House Watch at (626) 300-0720.
• Shortly before you go to bed, secure your home, turn on the outside lights and set your alarm.

Follow these easy steps to help us be the safest city.

On Tuesday August 6 at 6 p.m. at the back parking lot of City Hall, please join us for the Third Annual National Night Out. Those attending will learn more about the Police Department and what we do with the Fire Department to keep you safe. Meet other residents and obtain information from various groups working with the department to make our community safe. We will have food, drinks and a movie for the kids. ■

If you have suggestions for the newsletter, contact the San Marino Recreation Department at (626) 403-2200.
