A Message from City Manager Marcella Marlowe, Ph.D.

The Renewal of the City’s Public Safety Parcel Tax

On November 5, 2019 at San Marino municipal election, you were asked to vote on Measure SM: the renewal of the city’s longstanding Public Safety Parcel Tax, which has been a dedicated funding source for paramedic services, fire protection and prevention, and police protection in San Marino since its original passage in the early 1980s. The Los Angeles County Registrar of Voters has issued its final numbers for the election, showing successful passage of the measure, with over 71% of voters casting a vote in favor of it. This is a huge confirmation of the community’s pride and appreciation for our public safety responders, who dedicate their lives to keeping our community safe. Because of our community’s support, San Marino will be able to continue providing these top-notch public safety services for years to come.

On behalf of the Mayor and City Council, I thank you for your thoughtful consideration and for continuing our community’s vocal support of our public safety responders. They truly appreciate your trust, and do not take the responsibility given to them lightly.

Now that the new year is upon us, City staff will be turning our attention to preparation of the Fiscal Year 2020-21 budget. Please join us at the Barth Room in the Crowell Public Library at 6pm on February 3, 2020, for a discussion of your desired budget priorities.

An Identity Theft Prevention Checklist from Chief Incontro

Being a victim of identity theft can make it hard to obtain a job, apply for credit, apply for housing, secure utilities, as well as cause emotional distress.

What is identity theft? Identity theft, also known as identity fraud, is a crime in which an imposter obtains key pieces of personally identifiable information, such as a social security or driver license number, in order to impersonate someone else. Here are some of the most common ways identity theft occurs: Credit card theft, unsecure websites, phishing, hacking, shoulder surfing, skimming, fraudulent credit reports, pretexting, dumpster diving, and mail theft.

Safeguard your personal information and consider identity theft protection for added peace of mind. How can you protect your identity? Listed below are a few ways to avoid identity theft.

At home:
- Keep your financial records, Social Security and Medicare cards in a safe place
- Shred papers that have your personal or medical information
- Take mail out of your mailbox as soon as you can
- Only give your Social Security number if you must. Ask if you can use another kind of identification
- Do not give your personal information to someone who calls or emails you
- Always verify unsolicited calls to determine the origin

On your computer:
- Use passwords that are not easy to guess. Use numbers and symbols when you can
- Never share your password or account numbers over an e-mail or instant message
- Do not click on links sent to your email that you are unsure about
- Do not respond to emails or messages that ask for personal information
- Do not put personal information on a computer in a public place, such as a library
- Do not share any personal information on any social media sites

Read your bills and account statements and watch for the following:
- Things you did not buy
- Withdrawals you did not make
- A change of your address that you did not expect
- Bills that stop coming

Report any phishing, scam calls, or scam emails to the Federal Bureau of Investigations (FBI) website www.IC3.GOV
As evacuations are being ordered for the disastrous wildfires in California, it is a reminder that it’s never too early to talk with friends and family about their emergency plans. Those plans should also include an emergency go-bag, or emergency kit, even though it is hard to believe anything tragic could happen in this wonderful community of San Marino. The hazards presented by our geography; earthquakes, wildfires, tornadoes, terrorist attacks, and flooding, are among the most important factors to consider in deciding what goes in your emergency kit. It is important to build an emergency supply kit and have it ready and available at a moment’s notice.

What might make sense to one family might not be needed in another. Variables in putting together the right kit for your needs include everything from how many people you’re packing for, how much money you’d like to store, whether you want to keep a bag at home and at your office, what medicines do I need, and what about my pets?

FEMA, the American Red Cross, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, and the San Marino Fire Department website all provide checklists to help you get started, and many items they recommend overlap. Each agency offers a basic list, which includes water, food, a battery or hand-powered radio, a flashlight, batteries, and first-aid kit. Building from there, here’s what you should include in an emergency bag if you’re on your own, have a family of four, or have a pet in the mix.

The Bare Basics

Whether you buy one or build it, here’s what every kit should include.

Water

Nearly every professional preparedness organization will suggest stocking away bottles or pouches of water and gallons of potable water in the event of an emergency.

Food

Three days’ worth of nonperishable food can come in many forms, including massive hunks of survival food bars that contain 2,000 calories. But setting aside a few boxes of Clif Bars or your preferred energy bar is a better tasting, reliable option.

Portable Lighting

Flashlights and tea candles are ideal for setting up emergency lighting around a home or in a primitive dwelling, but a headlamp is compact and frees up both hands. At night, even minor problems can be a hassle if you can’t see what you’re doing.

An Emergency Whistle

If your cell phone cannot get service or the battery is drained, a simple signaling whistle is great for alerting emergency rescue crews of your location or for locating others in hazardous conditions.

A Dust Mask

Airborne debris, fumes or gas from accidents or natural disasters can cause respiratory problems. A simple painter’s mask or surgical mask will do in any kit.

Solar Chargers

If you don’t have access to an electrical outlet or reliable power, a solar charger will charge devices as large as a tablet with a day’s worth of sun.

Parents, mark your calendars!

Registration for the 2020 All City Track Meet starts Monday, January 6 through Thursday, February 6. See page 7 for more details.
Miscellaneous Items

Don’t forget to pack a few days’ supply of personal medications and prescriptions (especially life-preserving ones), as well as medical items you rely on, like glucose and blood-pressure monitoring equipment and supplies. Make sure you also pack a spare pair of glasses, sanitary towelettes, paper maps of your area, tweezers, scissors, duct tape, wind-resistant matches, and cash. Don’t leave out a external battery for your cell phone, laptop, or tablet.

A Multi-Tool

These tools can help with performing first-aid, making fires and repairing machinery or electronics. The best come with everything from a sharp knife and pair of pliers or tweezers to a can opener.

Spare Clothing

Consider your climate and pack for the most common weather. From an extra coat and gloves to a pair of walking shoes, consider the three basic layers for weatherproofing: base, insulation and shell. The base layer should include something that wicks away moisture and maintains body temperature such as synthetics or merino wool. Insulation layers can include puffy jackets stuffed with wool or down, or a fleece hooded sweatshirt or vest. The shell layer should be wind and rain-resistant, but also breathable.

A Weather/Emergency Radio

An emergency radio that can tune in to AM/FM and National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration channel. In the event of an emergency, especially a weather-related emergency, radio is your best bet to get up-to-date information on weather patterns, evacuation orders or official news from the authorities. A portable, easily powered radio can keep you connected to the outside world even if you’re stuck in a cellar, or a shelter. They can be powered by battery, hand crank, solar energy or USB.

Bleach

Household chlorine bleach when diluted, nine parts water to one part bleach, can be used as a disinfectant, according to FEMA. In an emergency, you can use it to treat water by using 16 drops of regular household liquid bleach per gallon of water.

For Your Pets

A few days’ supply of pet food, extra water and any medications your pet may need are essential to keeping them happy in an uncomfortable situation. Dog owners may also want to consider a jacket, for particularly cold weather, and a life jacket. And don’t forget their harness and leash!

For cat owners, or anyone with other small animals, consider packing some extra blankets in their pet carrier, so you can grab it all on the way out in an emergency.

First-Aid Essentials

No emergency kit is complete without a first-aid kit inside. Among the essentials in a first-aid kit are moleskin fabric, liquid bandages, soft-wrap elastic bandages, micropore paper tape, fabric adhesive dressings and bandages in a variety of sizes, coverlet adhesive 4-wing dressing, non-adherent bandage pads, a sterile gauze bandage roll, adhesive wound closures, triangular bandages, alcohol swabs and antiseptic wipes, packets of Bacitracin antibiotic ointment with zinc, burn ointment, eye wash, a thermometer, petroleum jelly, pain relievers, anti-diarrheal medications, antacids and laxatives. As with most things in your emergency go-bag, it’s important to periodically check that any medication, food or other perishable supplies (which can even include water or pain relievers) have not expired, and that the technology, such as your radio and battery packs, are still in working condition and compatible with your other equipment.

Finally, if you’re packing for a family, including children, build off the basics and necessities for one person, and make sure you pack enough supplies for everyone.

Manet at the Getty

Edouard Manet (1832 - 1883) was a provocateur and a dandy, the Impressionist generation’s great painter of modern Paris. Stylish portraits, luscious still lifes, delicate pastels and watercolors, and vivid cafe and garden scenes convey Manet’s elegant social world and reveal his growing fascination with fashion, flowers, and modern femininity, as embodied in the parisienne.
